Uvedini is a place for the match, Dunkin' fans! Starting February 26, Matcha Lattes will officially arrive at participating Dunkin' restaurants across the country. Available hot, ice or frozen, our delicious new Matcha Lattes is equipped with high quality, sweetened Matcha green tea powder mixed with your milk selection. Whether you're an avid Matcha drinker or are new to the Match scene, sipping one of Dunkin' new Match Latte is the perfect way to recharge and upgrade. Now you may be wondering, what is the story behind Match in Dunkin'? So we sat down with our own Courtney Anderson, the RDR's beverage manager here in Dunkin', for an internal scoop. According to Courtney, the culinary team took aim at Matcha more than five years ago and has been working ever since to create the perfect product for our guests. Compared to traditional green tea, where tea leaves are submerged or cooked, Matcha is made from stone grinding young green buds of tea leaves into fine powder. Dunkin's Matcha Lattes is equipped with high-quality Matcha green tea powder produced in the Nishi region of Aichi Prefecture, Japan, where the best Matcha has been grown for over 800 years. Because of the high levels of chlorophyll in the shade grown, the tea leaves used to make the matcha feature an attractive green color. The bright, natural color of the Match is not only beautiful, but also perfectly corresponds to the iconic brightness and energy that our fans know and love from Dunkin'. After successful testing at Dunkin' restaurants in Springfield, Massachusetts, and Phoenix, Arizona, this time last year, we were ready to roll out a Match Latte for fans across the country. Be sure to swing at Dunkin' next week to give it a try. Are you happy for Dunkin' Match? Let us know on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram! Tags: Dunkin' Matcha Latte Power Move over, pink velvet macchiato: March means green in the city. Provided photosDunkin' will present a new latte next week that toned bright green, thanks to the fashionable ingredient of health: Match. While there is no shortage of sugary coffee concoctions currently on the menu, spotting traditional Japanese beverages with a wellness-forward reputation is no less a welcome sight. According to the press release, the match latte combines a simple combination of match powder, your milk of choice, and cane sugar. You can also order a drink hot, iced or frozen. This means that your new morning pickup choice can translate into hot weather months around the corner. The latte match was first introduced at Dunkin' Ground in Springfield last year, and quickly became a fan favorite. Matcha acquired in American wellness circles in the early 2010s when she started toning everything from granola to ice cream it bright green hue. Now bitter powder has found a home in major grocery stores and in coffee chains such as Starbucks and Dunkin'. Matcha Dunkin' will use to whip up your frothy latte hailing from the Nishio region of Japan, a centuries-old source of fine powder that consists of ground-to-green kidney leaf tea. Instead of soaking and removing leaves like your medium tea, match the powder mixture directly into the hot water. While science is not yet definitive, a number of health benefits have been associated with drinking match, including increased metabolism, lower cholesterol, and increased energy. But what the powder is best known for is its antioxidants - it supposedly contains 60 times more than spinach, and 17 times more than in blueberries. While match lattes may be a healthy, alternative source of caffeine, Dunkin's 12 ounce version of the hot drink contains 21 grams of sugar. And 16 ounces of frozen version watches in at a whopping 54 grams. That's a lot of sugar. Guests can customize the drink with the milk of choice, but the sweetness of the match powder cannot be adjusted, Dunkin' confirmed. The new drink is part of a broader trend on the coffee and doughnut chain, which offers healthier options along with its traditional glazed choice. The company will also unveil a new protein cupcake next week for a limited time at participating locations. Filled with blueberries, cranberries, sunflower seeds and pumpkin seeds CANTON, MA (February 20, 2020) - In our busiest days, it can be hard to find even a moment to refresh and reset. Now Dunkin' Brand, a brand that keeps people running with great coffee and espresso, will offer the perfect alternative to coffee to help deliver that much-needed mental break, with the introduction of a new Matcha Latte. Compared to traditional green tea, where tea leaves are submerged or cooked, Matcha is made from stone grinding young green buds of tea leaves into fine powder. Dunkin's Matcha Lattes is equipped with high-quality Matcha green tea powder produced in the Nishi region of Aichi Prefecture, Japan, where the best Matcha has been grown for over 800 years. with a choice of guests milk for fresh, bright green tea, balanced taste of taste Thin sweetness, matcha latte can be served hot, iced or frozen. Favorite Fan, when first introduced for a limited time in Springfield, Massachusetts and Phoenix, Arizona last year, the Beautifully Bright Dunkin Match Latte will be available at participating Dunkin' restaurants across the country starting February 26. Tags: Dunkin' Matcha Lattes Matcha Protein Muffin Dunkin' has made some interesting moves in the last couple of months and we're particularly geeking about the company's latest menu item. Dunkin' kicked off the year by introducing the long-awaited oat milk latte. Now, the popular doughnut and cafe is turning heads once again with an all-new match latte. The Matcha latte is perfect for non-coffee drinkers who still need to increase caffeine from time to time, but not too much. It's a nice drink to start your morning with or sip in the middle of the day when you need to reset. Despite the appearance of traditional green tea, Dunkin's Matcha Latte is made quite differently. The match is created by grounding the leaves of green tea into a fine powder, which is then mixed with milk to make a creamy latte. There won't be a green tea bag floating around in this latte! RELATED: A new study suggests drinking this drink may be the key to preventing cardiovascular disease. Dunkin's matcha green tea powder comes from the Nishi region of Aichi Prefecture, Japan, an area known for its high-quality match. So whether you're already a matcha lover or you're looking for an excuse to give it a try, a match latte from Dunkin' Donuts may be worth your time. Match latte hits participating Dunkin' restaurants across the country on February 26. Dare we say it won't be long before America runs on The Match? If you're not ready, you better prepare. If the fluorescent green pigment of the Matcha makes you a little hesitant maybe the health benefits will help convince you to give it to him In the first article detailing the best match powders, holistic health coach and co-author of Match, Lifestyle Guide, Anna Kavalinas shared some of the best health benefits Match has to offer. Matcha contains more than four times the level of antioxidants in goji berries and dark chocolate, she said. These antioxidants have been shown to protect against cancer, prevent cardiovascular disease, lower cholesterol and blood pressure, detoxify the blood, alkalize the body, and stabilize blood sugar levels. In other words, swapping your Coffee Dunkin' for a match latte then and again may not be a bad idea. That's not all Dunkin' does. The company also adds a new protein muffin to the menu for a spirited breakfast or mid-afternoon pickup. Compared to 7 grams of protein in a standard Dunkin chocolate chip muffin, the new protein muffin will be even more filled with a whopping 16 grams of protein. The bun is also chock full of healthy ingredients, including blueberries, cranberries, sunflower seeds and pumpkin seeds. The bun will also be available at participating Dunkin' locations across the country starting February 26. Dunkin' is making additions to its menu with the launch of its new Match Latte and Protein Cupcake to give customers a mental boost during their busiest periods. First introduced in Springfield, Massachusetts, and Phoenix, Arizona, in 2019, Matcha Latte is made with high-quality green tea powder mixed with the milk guests of choice, according to the company. Like hot or cold, the new drink offers a fresh, bright, green tea flavor-this tea is known as a source of catechins and epicatechins that have beneficial health effects, according to a Harvard Medical School blog. These compounds found in green tea belong to a group of plant chemicals called flavonoids that help suppress inflammation and potentially reduce plaque buildup inside the arteries. Green tea also contains less caffeine than other hot drinks, ranging from 20 to 45 milligrams per 8 ounce cup-about half the amount of caffeine in an 8 ounce cup of coffee. Matcha is made a little differently than the usual green tea we see in stores - it's made from stone grinding young buds of green tea leaf into fine powder. This particular match is produced in the Nishio region of Aichi Prefecture, Japan, where the best match has been grown for over 800 years, according to Dunkin'. Available from February 26, 2020, Matcha Latte can be served hot, iced or frozen in stores across the country.
